FEUD WITHIN FEUD IN ALEXANDER HOME

Stormy Scenes Enacted When Strong Box Key Cannot Be Found.

RELATIVES DEMAND GRAND JURY PROBE

Detectives Said to Have Secured Damaging Evidence Against Suspect.

it is understood, that the circumstantial evidence already gathered is sufficient to justify an indictment or indictments, but the bottom of the probe has not yet been reached by any means. Be-fore the week ends he believes a strong case will have been established.

The process of deduction is being used by the detectives in fathoming the mystery. By establishing the conclusion that certain persons, who had access to the treasure box, did not get any of the money that is missing, the detectives have narrowed down the list of suspects in the latest thefts to about three individuals.

Attorney Remains Silent.

Attorney John L. Smith, who, with his law partner, James B. Archer, repre-sents Thomas W. Hay, the trustee of the estate, and a brother of the aged victim of the thefts, returned today from a trip to New York. He left hurriedly after he and Mr. Archer made the complaint to the police. He is reticent with reference to the mission of his trip, but it is known that it had some important bearing on the Alexander

It is quite likely the two attorneys will today take up with the United States Attorney's office the question of presenting the evidence amassed by the detectives to the grand jury. They are averse to hurrying the investigation, as they want to go to the very depths of the mystery.

iey want to go to the very depths or ie mystery.

The theft of a diamond brooch from Irs. Columbus Alexander, about a year go, is another chapter added to the ise today. It is reported that the rooch was traced to a pawnshop, where had been taken by a woman. When was disclosed that the loot had been awned by a woman the investigation as dropped for obvious reasons.

Pawned by a Woman.

Still another theft of jewelry that octurred in the old Alexander homestead, the Dumbarton mansion, at 1647 Thirtieth street, has come to the notice of the police in the present investigation. A watch and a diamond ring was stolthe city shortly afterwards. Police de-tectives found the stolen property in a pawnishop, but prosecution of the woman who had taken it was stopped on dondition that she paid the owners enough money to redeem the ring and watch.

A family feud within a family feud was revealed today when the detectives learned that Mrs. E. O. Hayes, who is now on a trip to the Bermuda Islands, and Mrs. H. V. Bouic, her sister—both being granddaughters of Mrs. Columbus. Alexander—are at loggerheads over the administration of the estate of their mother, Mrs. C. F. Russell, who died several months ago.

Mrs. Bouic, it was stated, filed a petition for letters of administration, and Mrs. Hayes objected, alleging irregularities. Since the incident the two sisters have not spoken to each other and have been on unfriendly terms.

Mrs. Alexander Improved.

Mrs. Alexander Improved.

Since Mrs. Hayes and Mrs. W. O. Alexander left for the Bermudas last Thursday, Mrs. Boulc has been almost constant attendance on her grand-other. The condition of the aged woman was reported as slightly improved today, although she is not out of danger of a fatal rejapse.

Arrangements have been made by the Central Office detectives to get a writ-ten statement from persons who have been under the ban of suspicion. State-ments given out by members of the family have been contradictory because of there being two factions bitterly at war with one another. By reducing the accusations to writing in the presence of witnesses the de-tectives hope to avoid future complica-tions and possible denials.

tions and possible denials.

One woman in particular is anxious to be exonerated from accusations that have been made against her by another suspect, and she has told the detectives she was willing to tell everything she knew.

Eager to Tell of Feud.

She is reported as saying that she saw Mrs. Alexander's treasure box in possession of another suspect on the day It also is understood that she is eager Withdrew Her Petition.

Protests were made by Mrs. Hayes, Islands, and the action of the court in maning Mrs. Bouic was set aside. However, subsequently she changed her mind, and by permission of Chief Justice Clabaugh withdrew her motion and petition, and consented to the reappointment of Mrs. Bouic.
